

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18, 1890.

Senator Barbour being asked by the GAZETTE's correspondent this morning what he thought of the present talk about the next Presidency, said he thought it was entirely too premature to be talking in 1890 about an election that would not occur until near the close of 1892, as all the present conditions might be changed by the latter time. "But," said he, "I have no hesitation in saying that availability should be the chief qualification of the next democratic Presidential nominee. Sentiment is very well in its place, but it is out of place in an uncertain political fight. My personal relations," he said, "with Mr. Cleveland are more friendly than with any of the other gentlemen I have heard spoken of as possible candidates and I do not even know Mr. Hill, but a wise man would not select as its commander a man who acknowledges that he knows nothing of warfare, and for a like reason I think it would be unwise for a political party to enter an uncertain campaign under a leader who frowns upon practical politics and confesses that he knows nothing about the management and control of party affairs." Being asked if Mr. Cleveland would not receive the support of Wall Street and that of the class of men known as mugwumps, Senator Barbour said he thought he would, but that such support, if he be the nominee, would do him more harm than good, inasmuch as it would tend to drive more effective strength away from him. The mugwumps, he said, tried to beat the democrats in New York city week before last, but made a signal failure, and it was only by the success of Tamm that the legislature of New York was made democratic and a democratic Senator secured in that State. Mr. Barbour also said that Mr. Cleveland's pronounced opposition to the silver men and to the whole policy of the Farmers' Alliance would deprive the democratic party of the assistance of both the powerful organizations if he were at its head. Mr. Barbour said that tariff reform was now popular, and he was glad it had become so, but that Mr. Cleveland was not his father. He and Walker before the war, and more recently Carlisle and Morrison, are certainly more entitled to its patronage than he. Then, too, he said, Mr. Cleveland is not a more pronounced tariff reformer now than he was in 1888, and then though Hill carried New York, Cleveland lost it, and was defeated. "However," the Senator continued, "though I shall not go to the next national convention, I and all other good democrats will cheerfully work for its nominee, whoever he may be, but, as I said before, it is entirely too soon to be raising questions about the particular individual who is to be nominated, and who can take possession of the White House until the 4th of March 1893."

It is said here that as soon as Congress shall assemble, Mr. Brickeridge of Arkansas, who though deprived of his seat during the first session of a body, will occupy it during the second, will reintroduce his separate bills, each providing for the removal of the tariff on a single article, one for salt, one for lumber, one for wine, one for cotton, one for sugar, and so on, and that with the new light the northern western republicans have seen on the subject, some may be induced to help the democratic cause, if not all, at least one or two of them.

John T. King was today appointed storekeeper and gauger in the internal revenue service at Tim, Patrick county, Va.

Congressman Springer, of Illinois, who nominated Mr. Cleveland for the Presidency at the late Republican banquet, and was subsequently invited to come East with Mr. Cleveland on Mr. Brice's borrowed car, and who says now that there are more northern than southern democrats, the former should take entire control of the party, has returned to this city, and says a free silver bill will be passed at the coming session of Congress and that he is in favor of it, and that Mr. Harrison will not dare to veto it.

The rumor that Mr. Jay Gould has obtained control of the Richmond Terminal is generally credited in railroad circles here. It is said such control will not only be advantageous to Mr. Gould as a connection for his Pacific road, but that it shows he neither forgives nor forgets, as some of the present owners of the Terminal unloaded on him several years ago.

J. D. Hite and W. E. Stevens were today appointed 4th class postmasters in Virginia, the former at Earle, Amelia county, and the latter at Stafford Court House.

The War Department has received no news of any change in the situation at the Fine Ridge, Sanding Rock and other Sioux agencies, and as officers are on the watch at all points where trouble is threatened, these business it is reported no immediate trouble is at hand.

A few officers, both at home and abroad, are still, for personal or other reasons, held by democrats, but it is hardly possible they will continue to be much longer, as a dead set has been already commenced upon them by those republicans in the present Congress who were defeated at the recent election.

GOULD HAS CONTROL.—The New York Commercial Advertiser says: "Among the changes going on in railway control the latest that is clearly discernible is the passing of the control of the Richmond Terminal to Jay Gould. He is understood to have said to some of his friends that he had secured enough of the stock of the company to control it. Richmond Terminal people are very reticent about the matter. President Inman declined to confirm the story, but refused to deny it. Others who know what is going on were less reserved, and while they refused to be quoted, said that the fact was undeniable, and that Jay Gould had secured control of the Richmond Terminal."

Regarding the rumor that Jay Gould had secured control of the Richmond Terminal road, Calvin S. Brice said: "It would be a good thing for Mr. Gould if he got control of the Richmond Terminal system, and I don't know but that it would be agreeable to some of those now interested in that system." Mr. Brice refused to talk further about the story. Gen. Thomas would say nothing about the rumor. To-day President Inman of the Richmond Terminal system said: "There are 700,000 shares of stock, and of this amount Mr. Gould has bought up one seventh, or 100,000 shares. The board of directors consists of eighteen members, and the amount of stock held by Mr. Gould will entitle him to three or four members in that board at the next election. I regard Mr. Gould and his son George as first class railroad men, and they will be welcomed in the present management. My present relations with Mr. Gould are of the most friendly character."

The Barings.
A London dispatch to the New York Herald says: "The bar is one sentiment east of Temple Bar—that the Barings would have failed but for the assistance of the Bank of England, Morgan & Co., and others. This assistance was only given on the terms of those who rendered it. These terms are that the Barings shall go into liquidation and that the liquidators shall be those named three years; at the end of which period the Barings' immense business will have been absorbed by the liquidators. It is estimated that when the affairs of the firm are settled a million pounds or more will remain to the members."

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the B. & O. R. R., held in Baltimore yesterday, all the old board of directors were re-elected. The president's report was approved. It showed the following summary of the entire system: Earnings $24,412,095.90; operating expenses, $16,968,869.79; net earnings of the property, $7,443,226.11.

Supreme Court Decisions.

The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday rendered an opinion affirming the judgment of the Court of Claims disallowing the claim of John G. Williams, administrator of Col. Francis Taylor. Col. Taylor was colonel of the Albemarle Guards of Virginia, a regiment raised by the State during the revolutionary war for certain specific duties within a circumscribed district. Before his appointment Col. Taylor had served in the regular continental establishment. His claim was for five years full pay with interest under the act of the Continental Congress passed in 1783, granting five years full pay to those officers of the revolutionary army who continued in service until the close of the war. The disallowance of the claim is on the ground that the Albemarle Guards were not a part of the continental army. Opinion by Justice Blatchford.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

The New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—11 a. m.—The stock market this morning was still comparatively quiet but feverish and irregular, from the uncertainty of the situation, notwithstanding that affairs seem to be putting on a much better appearance from day to day. There are a large number of stocks dealt in but only a few of the leading shares; there are very real activity and prices are subject to rapid and frequent changes, although the general tendency is now upward. The differences in prices between last night and this morning extended to 5-8 per cent. either way.

The announcement has been made of the suspension of P. W. Gallaudet, with liabilities of $1,000,000.

Noon.—Money is tight with no offers and 6 per cent. bid. The stock market became comparatively dull after 11 o'clock, even the leading active stocks subsiding into quietude, while the firm tone which had marked the early trading fairly disappeared, and fractional losses were scored over the entire list, the weak stocks of the first hour showing material losses from the best prices. The market at noon was rather quiet but still heavy to weak at the lowest prices of the morning.

The London Stock Market

LONDON, Nov. 18.—12.30 p. m.—The stock market opened better, but business has since dwindled in volume and is now stagnant. As compared with the closing prices on the stock exchange last evening, prices at 12.30 p. m. to day show a decline of 3/4 for consols for money, a decline of 1/4 for consols for the account. At the close, prices as compared with those ruling at 12.30 p. m. showed an advance of 3-16 for consols for money, an advance of 1-16 for consols for the account. At the close of the market foreign securities were better. Other securities were dull.

Foreign News.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—A fight occurred on Sunday at Bratislava, Transylvania, between the opposing members of one of the churches there. The trouble originated in the opposition of the Saxon members of the church to a newly appointed Roumanian pastor. When the new minister attempted to enter the church he was prevented from doing so by the Saxons. When the battle was ended it was found that six persons had been killed and sixteen injured.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—The Freeman's Journal commenting upon the O'Shea divorce case says that the Duke of Wellington, Lord Nelson, Lord Palmerston, and a number of other prominent personages in their lifetime were the subjects of scandal similar to that in which Mr. Parnell is now involved. The Journal says that the gaffe about these cases be never went into society. Continuing the Journal says it is imperative that Mr. Parnell continue as leader of the Irish parliamentary party. The Express says: "It would be wise for Mr. Parnell to retire to private life, but we can hardly expect him to show so much self-respect as this course would evidence." The Star (O'Connor's paper) says Parnell does not intend to resign the leadership of the Irish parliamentary party.

Threatened Trouble in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 18.—The excitement growing out of the recent assassination of Chief of Police Hennessy is becoming more intensified, and it is feared that serious disturbances are yet in store. Public sentiment condemns the Italian consul for his course in writing a letter to the grand jury now sitting on the case, charging brutally on the part of prison officials toward the suspected men. This action is regarded as an unwarranted interference, and is likely to cause trouble. An Italian priest, who is also the editor of a newspaper, last night issued a call on the Italian Government to place a martial law on the Mississippi river for the protection of the Italian residents of New Orleans.

Fatal Effects of Religious Frenzy

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 18.—A religious revival has been in progress several days in a colored Methodist church in this city. Yesterday Mary Davis and Rhoda Wright became wildly excited by a kind of religious frenzy. They began shouting at a terrible rate and hugging each other with all their strength. This was kept up some time, when the Wright woman fell to the floor exhausted. The other woman fell on to her and continued shouting. In falling the Davis woman's knees struck Rhoda in the chest. In a few minutes the congregation noticed that Rhoda had ceased to shout and was gasping for breath. Mary was pulled off, but too late. Rhoda breathed her last in a few minutes.

The la grippe has made its appearance in this part of the county again. Mrs. Wm. Ashford, living near Burke's station, died last week from a second attack. She was ill only a few days. She was a most estimable lady, and her sudden death was much regretted by a large circle of friends. A son and daughter are quite ill with the same disease.

In ten or twelve days, if the dog's bone unites with the boy's, the operation will be complete and the surgeon's knife will cut the last links of flesh by which the dog is now connected with the boy.
